WE NOMINATE

with all the humility at our command the 33 alumni of Princeton High School who gave their lives in World War II and who will be honored this week by the High School Classes of 1945, 1946, 1947 and 1948. With the presentation of a simple bronze plaque, to be placed near the school building's main entrance and representing the gifts of hundreds of young citizens, it seems as if a living institution is being re-dedicated to the beliefs and convictions for which men and women made the supreme sacrifice in time of world stress.

Some four years after war's end, and eight decades after the first observance of Memorial Day, the High School's Honored Dead accentuate the bonds between past and present. The memories of older teachers, the recollections of younger brothers and sisters, are passed on to succeeding classes and are assimilated as school traditions. A senior in 1949 recalls that many of the War Dead combined class officerships and student council duties with starring roles in athletics, that a former Marine was an all-time baseball great.

Memories may magnify, or even fray, but War Department records will always show that an infantryman, who would have been 24 next fall, deliberately drew fire so that his company might weather the withering blasts of a concealed machine-gun nest. Another accepted a mission along the Rapido River and a third survived the African campaigns only to fall in France hours after D-Day. Missing in action, accidents at training bases, lingering sickness far from home—all are part of the School's heritage.

For keeping the faith with the ideals they served so well; for possessing the kind of courage that is one of the dreams of youth and of the great; for living on and on in Princeton's hearts as symbols of everything this nation stands for; the above-named are TOWN TOPICS' nominees for Check and Doublecheck. Out of last week's unusually stormy session that saw the council vote on a sharply split 4-2 ballot to turn the Greenholm issue over to the people next November, two points have emerged with considerable clarity.

One concerns the problem as a whole: with Councilmen Voorhees and West declining to defer to public opinion in the matter (and Mayor Erdman likewise on record against such procedure), the governing body mustered a majority approving a referendum "on the question of creating a through street parallel to Nassau." Although better than four months remain for study, there is at the outset no clear indication that the unusually complex matter of alternate routes and their costs can be submitted to the public in any practical fashion. The council's motion left the clear impression that the voters were to be given a choice among Greenholm, the northern route or no route at all. No valid choice exists—as Councilman Griffing pointed out—without a report to the public on what outlay in funds is involved. Yet without reopening the recently - terminated condemnation proceedings—an about-face of violent proportions—no yardstick for measuring costs accurately is at hand.

Point two arising from last week's hearing is, on the other hand, a self-evident, uncomplicated solution to a highly undesirable situation. The strip of land south of Greenholm, which R. Warner Wood has dedicated to the borough in return for a promise not to proceed with condemnation proceedings through the central route, is essential to opening Bank Street and connecting it with Chambers. The agreement also creates a major paradox:

On the one hand, the municipality accepts a right-of-way, immediately binding itself not to return to the central route. In direct conflict with such thinking, it then takes steps to hold a referendum, the outcome of which might be a "Mouli Grater." We're a bit later catching up with this marvelous new labor-saver than we like to be. However, even though quite a few people found them at Farr's Hardware and The Wright Store before we did, we still think they're good enough to bring to the attention of those who didn't.

Every housewife will probably agree that grating is one of the kitchen's more tedious tasks, but not any more, thanks to "Mouli," a product of French ingenuity with typical American efficiency. Made in two simple pieces with a removable rotating drum, "Mouli" is safe (fingers cannot be scratched), quick (the left or right-handed crank does the work) and economical (no food is left over ungrated.)

It can cope with anything gratable—cheese, bread crumbs, nuts, eggs, carrots, soap, to mention a few examples—and, depending on the pressure exerted on the cover handle, can produce either coarse or fine results. It can be held in your hand, which eliminates any table-top attaching, is rustproof and, happily, sells for only $1.

Sheet and Pillowcase Gift Sets. These pastel-bordered white percale sets at The Cummins Shop are the kind of thing we've always wanted and, never having been given them, are still in the process of wanting. For prospective brides who feel the same way, what better engagement gift?

Made of top quality "American Beauty" percale, both sheets and pillowcases have wide hemstitched borders in lovely pastel shades with eight colors to select from. You can also choose from three sets—none inexpensive, but good sheets never are. A pair of pillowcases is $3.95; one oversize (90 x 108) sheet with two matching pillowcases is $10.95; a pair of twin bed (72 x 108) sheets plus pillowslips is $14.95. In addition to their own really lush appearance and feel, mandate from the people to proceed directly through the route it has agreed not to touch.

Governmental planning, particularly at the local level, should be carried out on a pay-as-you-go basis with no strings attached. Agreements binding future councils and ham-stringing future planning are of no service to the community, particularly where a figure as low as $2,500 will bring clear title to the property. Mr. Wood, who is on record as willing to accept such payment, should have a check as quickly as the transaction can be completed.

Position Open. On the afternoon of June 30, Postmaster Stephen W. Margerum will retire after 15 years of service in the complex position he holds. With five weeks to go, one group of Princetonians is petitioning Washington (through Assemblyman Charles R. Howell) to see that assistant Postmaster Samuel E. Copner is promoted to fill the vacancy, basing their contention on his 22-plus years of experience in the field.

News of the Theatres

THE PLAYHOUSE

The Barkleys of Broadway (Thurs.-Sat.) spins the saga of a dance team of the '30's, Astaire & Rogers by name, employing to considerable advantage the talents of a dance team of the late '40's, same name. Time has slowed the pace but no more than mellowed the over-all result. A good musical.

The Beautiful Blonde From Bashful Bend (Sun.-Wed.) is none other than Betty Grable cast as an Annie Oakley of the year 1885. Her six-shooter and a case of mistaken identity in which she is taken for a school-marm provide a fair share of merriment in a horse-opera Western.

The Sun Comes Up (Thurs.-Sat.) portrays singer Jeanette MacDonald as a widow who sees her only son killed by a truck, turns to mothering a young orphan (played by Claude Jarman, Jr.) Neither the collie, Lassie, nor the picturesque Carolina mountain setting draw sufficient attention from the fact that the film is strictly a tear-jerker.

THE GARDEN

Red Canyon (Fri., Sat.,) is a new if wholly unoriginal western in which a reformed outlaw (Howard Duff) seeks to tame a wild horse (Black Velvet) and pretty Ann Blyth seeks to lasso Mr. Duff. All hands meet with ups & downs, eventual success amid the colorful Utah range country.

The Paleface (Mon., Tues.), Bob Hope's comedy in which he plays a correspondence school dentist touring the hard-bitten West, is good for much broad humor. With Jane Russell, whose measurements are also noteworthy.

The Raven (Wed.) is another in the series of foreign films the Garden is now running. An interesting French production with English titles.

Gloves — Custom-made, Hand-made. We're still in the luxury department, but, price-wise, not as much so as you might think. For those of you who love that hand-made look, Carnegie Cleaners (242½ Nassau) can now make gloves in virtually any fabric and any style, measured to fit you own hand.

To give you an idea: a beautiful soft doe-skin with hand-stitched back and fingers is $6; a pigskin-palmed, doeskin-backed golf or driving glove with the same lovely stitching is $8.50. You can also get dress suedes in various lengths and styles, while men, too, are not left out of the picture. Leather and pigskin for them start at $8.50, approximately the same as good machine-made, hand-stitched gloves. The ladies' models, incidentally, are about $3 to $5 less than if you had them made to order in a New York store.
